

BOXING COMMISSION MEETINGS DRAW BIG CROWDS THESE DAYS

Interesting Subjects Discussed and Now and Then a Little Fun for Spectators.

THE weekly meetings of the State Boxing Commission are well attended these days. It is the favorite gathering place for prominent lights of the boxing profession. Under the old regime nobody ever attended the meetings except those who were summoned to appear, but under the present system all the meetings are open and as a result are attended by many spectators. Many interesting things are brought up and many funny statements are made by witnesses that cause more hearty laughs than one would get at a vaudeville show.

The commission was in an exceptionally lenient mood at the weekly meeting yesterday. It was the tendency to excuse and tell offenders to "go away and sin no more."

Mickey Donley, a featherweight boxer from Newark, was on deck with a complaint against John Reiser. He was championed by his brother, Donley, who complained that Reiser paid him, or offered to pay him only $25 after his recent bout with Otto Hansen in Brooklyn.

Donley declared that the first time that he met Hansen he was knocked out, but he received $75 for his work. He thought he ought to be paid more for his second bout with the same boxer, as he won this engagement.

Of course the commission differed with him. Chairman Wenck declared that he was lucky to get on a return bout, and that he couldn't expect to get as much as he was paid before in view of the fact that he was knocked out previously.

Then John Reiser was heard. He declared that he had a hard time in losing to Hansen, but if he didn't beat Hansen, but if he won he wanted to be paid accordingly.

Reiser said that after the bout he was offered $25 for Donley's work, but that he refused it, as he said that Donley was worth more than that sum.

Then Donley's brother broke in and said that Mickey wanted to break away from John, anyway.

Commissioner Wenck then said: "I want to give you a little advice, Mickey. You've got to have only one manager if you want to get along. Either take Reiser or your brother, but drop one of them."

Mickey declared: "Then I'll take my brother." "I'm satisfied," shouted Reiser. A letter was read from Manager Willie McDonald of the Olympic A. C., asking that his club's suspension for two shows be cut in half. However, the commission refused to act, as it declared that additional complaints had been received regarding the manner the club conducted the Cawley-Levin fight.

The only complaint against the Harlem Sporting Club for the way it conducted the all-star show last Friday night was from a man who was refused admission on two press tickets, but who was admitted when he bought two five dollar seats.

Bloom Battled Dundee to Draw

If a trip to the West will improve a boxer as much as it did Phil Bloom, then dozens of others ought to follow the advice of Horace Greeley. Bloom, fresh from a tour of the West and Canada, tackled Johnny Dundee at the Clermont A. C. in Brooklyn last night and gave the popular Italian the hardest battle the month "meal ticket" has had in months. Bloom battled with Dundee all the way. He met his jumping tactics with stiff jabs, and in the mix-ups often stood up and slugged as long as Dundee did. Indeed, on two occasions he made the Italian fighting machine back up.

Dundee was in the losing end until the sixth round. Then the fierceness of his fighting began to tell on the Brooklynite. The latter made a great stand in the last minute of the bout, standing toe to toe with Dundee and slugging. Because of his great work in the early rounds Bloom was entitled to a draw.

RITCHIE HAD TO FIGHT HARD TO BEAT M'ANDREWS.

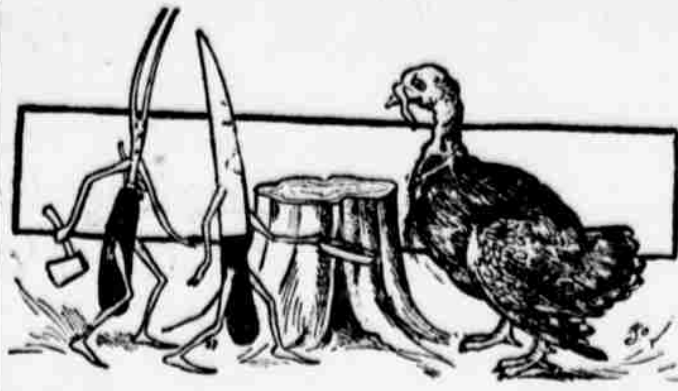

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—Willie Ritchie, ex-lightweight champion of the world, but to all appearances a full fledged welterweight now, made his first appearance in this city in about four years and his decision to fight the tough Eddie McAndrews of this city in six slashing rounds at the Olympic A. A. C. last night.

While Ritchie was he had to travel at a lightning clip and it was only because of the fact that Ritchie landed terrific right hooks which staggered Eddie that he was entitled to the decision.

McAndrews fought a hard, aggressive fight and many times took the lead from the Californian, but Ritchie would offset this with one solid wallop to the jaw that staggered the Quaker City entry and then follow it up with hard rights.
